Sylt Etiquette

GENERAL BATHING GUIDELINES

At official swimming areas, bathgoers are in good hands: Experienced local lifeguards keep a close watch over their respective beach sections and are familiar with tides and currents. Their skills are tested annually in surf rescue exams. Nonetheless, bathers should follow current safety regulations, lifeguards' instructions, and general swimming rules, as the sea can be dangerous in unexpected places – especially outside the supervised areas.

PROTECTING THE DUNES MEANS PROTECTING THE COAST

Dunes serve as natural barriers against the force of the sea. Carefully planted marram grass stabilizes the dunes, but this vegetation is fragile. As more visitors began sunbathing in the dunes, harming the plants, all dune areas on Sylt have been strictly off-limits since 1978. Informal footpaths off the official routes have also been closed. Please stay on marked paths and don't let children play in the dunes. Avoid digging sandcastles or trenches near beach chairs – when the tide comes in, water may not drain properly and could wash away sand around the chairs.

FEEDING SEAGULLS IS PROHIBITED

They are as much a part of Sylt as the sand itself: seagulls. But they've become a nuisance, especially on Westerland's promenade. Due to frequent feeding and increased rooftop nesting, their ding seagulls or any wild animals is misguided compassion and harms their behavior and health.

LOTS OF WIND FOR FLYING KITES

While strong wind often means great kite weather, care must be taken. Tightly stretched kite lines cutting through the air near the beach may be fun for the pilot, but dangerous for walkers and swimmers. Therefore, stunt kites are prohibited in busy beach sections and bird nesting areas. Please check the local regulations of each municipality.

FRISIAN WALLS – FUNCTIONAL ART

Originally built to block the wind, these stone walls now function more as decorative fences. Painstakingly crafted by hand, they may look sturdy but are not benches or climbing frames. Damaging them can lead to costly repairs – and angry homeowners.

population has risen significantly. The birds have become bold, snatching ice creams, crêpes, or fish sandwiches right from people's hands. The town of Westerland has issued a feeding ban. Violations carry heavy fines. Fee-

Nature

Two is better than one, in List two fires are burning in competition with each other.

ELLENBOGEN

The narrow peninsula north of List, curving east like an arm over the head, is called Ellenbogen and is private land (cars pay a toll; pedestrians and cyclists enter for free). Here you'll find nothing but dunes, sea, wind, and wide-open space. At the northern beach of the western Ellenbogen, you are at Germany's northernmost point.

SHIFTING DUNES OF LIST

These white dunes west of List are still moving – about six meters annually, and sometimes up to ten. In the past, such dunes buried entire settlements like Old Rantum and Old List. Today, three of these dunes are preserved in their natural state and protected. A fantastic view awaits from the observation platform at the northern edge of the dune area.

CLIFFS

Sylt's cliffs offer spectacular views. Despite the name, they're not rocky cliffs but steep coastal escarpments ("Klef" in Frisian), shaped over 9,000 years by the sea. The most photographed cliff is the Red Cliff between Wenningstedt and Kampen, rising nearly 30 meters. In the evening sun, it glows red – hence its name. A geologist's favorite is the Morsum Cliff, where ten million years of Earth's history are revealed in a few square kilometers.

Tip: Join a geological tour!

Between Munkmarsch and Braderup is the White Cliff, and in Keitum, the mudflat walk passes the Green Cliff.

UWE-DUNE

At 52,5 meters above sea level, the Uwe Dune is Sylt's highest natural point. From the end of Kurhausstraße in Kampen, a path leads to the dune's base. Climb the 110 wooden steps to enjoy a grand panoramic view – even over the whole island on clear days.

BRADERUPER HEATH

Half of all heathland in Schleswig-Holstein is on Sylt. The largest is the Braderup Heath nature reserve with 140 hectares. In late summer, the blooming purple common heather (Calluna vulgaris) dominates a landscape that supports 2,500 animal species. This is not untouched wilderness, but a cultural landscape in transition.

From the Braderup Nature Center, guided tours are available. The center also features a family-friendly exhibition about the island and the sea.

RANTUM BASIN

In 1936/37, a 5-kilometer-long dyke between Tinnum and Rantum enclosed 560 hectares of mudflats for a seaplane base – which was barely used. Today, this human-made area is beloved by hikers and wildlife. Protected since 1962, it's now a rich breeding and resting habitat for birds.

WADDEN SEA NATIONAL PARK

Sylt is at the heart of the Schleswig-Holstein Wadden Sea National Park, also a UNESCO World Heritage Site. The landscape is shaped by tides, salty seawater, and strong winds – creating habitats for "specialists" like glasswort (a salt marsh plant) or lugworms, which feed on organic material in the sand.

There are many ways to explore this unique ecosystem: mudflat walks, boat tours with marine life explanations, or birdwatching tours. Information is available at local tourism offices.

PORPOISES

West of Sylt, the Whale Sanctuary (part of the National Park)

offers a peaceful breeding area for porpoises. With a bit of luck, you can spot their triangular dorsal fins on calm evenings from the beach.

HÖRNUM ODDE

A walk around the southern tip of Sylt (best at low tide) reveals both of the island's faces: the gentle eastern shore and the wild western surf – all in just over an hour. This route also shows Sylt's most fragile area. Tides and storms constantly erode the Hörnum Odde. Just 15 years ago, this walk took over three hours – now, only about one.

TINNUM FORT (TINNUMBURG)

This circular rampart in Tinnum's meadows dates back possibly to the 1st century, initially serving as a sacred site. In Viking times (8th–10th century), it was likely a fortified settlement. The current visible wall reaches up to 7 meters in height.

VOGELKOJEN (DUCK DECOYS)

Sylt even has a “primeval forest” – romantic, mysterious, and right by the Wadden Sea. These nature reserves, called Vogelkojen, were once duck-trapping sites. Today, they offer trails combining nature, history, and a hint of spookiness.

LOCAL HISTORY MUSEUMS

Two historic houses in Keitum – just a few meters apart – showcase what life was like on Sylt.

Want to know what an Alkoven is? What happened in the Pesel? Why did Frisians sleep sitting up? What does it mean to „add a tooth“ (einen Zahn zulegen)? Then visit the Altfriesisches Haus (Old Frisian House), dating back to 1640, for fascinating insights into the island's peculiar past.

CHURCHES

Visible from the railway embankment, St. Severin Church in Keitum is a Sylt landmark. Its oldest part, the apse, dates back to the 12th century. Sister church St. Martin in Morsum has a wooden belfry instead of a tower. The small village church St. Niels in Westerland was built in 1635. The sail-shaped St. Thomas Church in Hörnum (1969/70) is Schleswig-Holstein's youngest heritage-listed church building.

Many churches offer high-quality music, such as the Wednesday Concerts at St. Severin (Keitum) or Sunday concerts at St. Nicolai in Westerland (June–October). Other churches host music events during the summer as well.

BOAT TRIPS

Mini Cruises into the UNESCO World Heritage Sit

From April to October, the Adler VI departs several times daily from Hörnum for short cruises around Sylt's southern tip – the perfect introduction to the Wadden Sea.

Island and Hallig Cruises

From Hörnum harbor, Adler Ships take you to Sylt's neighboring islands. Whether it's swimming on Amrum, visiting the fish market on Föhr, or nature spotting on Hallig Hooge – there are many options, and you'll likely see seals or grey seals along the way.

Pirate Tour on the “Gret Palucca”

Departing from List harbor, kids dress as pirates, search for treasure, and stage a mutiny – with “serious” penalties for the grown-ups.

Oyster Bank Tour on the “Rosa Paluka”

Also from List, enjoy fresh oysters, a glass of wine, and expert commentary.

Seal Bank Tour with Marine Life Catch

From List and Hörnum, boats sail to seal resting areas. Depending on the tides, you might see dozens or hundreds of seals lazing on sandbanks. A trawl net is lowered during the tour, giving you an exciting look at North Sea marine life – which is, of course, released afterward.

SYLTER WELLE

This large spa and leisure pool in Westerland is nestled in the dunes with a stunning view of the North Sea surf. Covering 4,600 sqm and with 1,000 sqm of North Sea water pools, it offers a unique blend of regeneration and relaxation:

Sports Pool

The sports pool invites visitors to enjoy lap swimming and daring jumps from the one- or three-meter diving boards. With five 25-meter lanes, there is plenty of space, even during early morning swimming sessions.

Experience World

The three giant slides, each up to 120 meters long, are an absolute highlight for both young and old water lovers. Kids can conquer the seas with the Viking play ship, while the paddling pool ensures that even the smallest visitors feel like big adventurers.

Sauna Area

The sauna area at Sylter Welle offers a variety of relaxation options with three relaxation rooms, indoor and outdoor plunge pools, and a range of saunas – from the classic Finnish sauna to the aroma sauna and the steam sauna. A special highlight in the outdoor area is the Viking sauna, the log cabin sauna, and the Finnish barrel sauna – all offering a stunning view of the sea and dunes.

Indulgence World

Need a little refreshment between swimming and sauna sessions? Enjoy a snack at the Sylter Welle Bistro with a view of the wave pool. For sunseekers, the panoramic sun deck and numerous beach chairs in the open-air sauna area offer the perfect spot to relax with a magnificent sea view.

Centrally located in Westerland, right on the promenade, the versatile Syltiness Center spans approximately 4,500 sqm, offering everything for health, well-being, beauty, and fitness.

Beauty

Enjoy relaxing beauty and care treatments in the bright and airy beauty studio. Experience anti-aging intensive treatments with ultrasound or the Dermionology method, among other rejuvenating procedures.

Thalasso

Thalasso treatments harness the natural healing power of the sea. Sea air, mud, and seawater contain numerous health-boosting properties, offered in the form of seawater baths and inhalations, mud wraps, and marine cosmetics for ultimate relaxation and wellness.

Wellness

Step into a world of holistic wellness philosophy, inspired by Eastern and traditional teachings. Treatments such as Ayurveda, Hot Stone, and Lomi massages promote inner balance for the body, mind, and soul. Indulge in aroma massages with fragrant oils, Cleopatra treatments, or wellness massages to achieve deep relaxation, inner peace, and harmony.

Fitness

The sports center, with its stunning North Sea view, offers a diverse course program, combining fitness and relaxation through strength training, posture improvement, endurance, and relaxation techniques. Popular classes include yoga, indoor cycling, and aqua fitness.

Outpatient Spa Treatments

For conditions such as rheumatism, skin disorders, and respiratory diseases, outpatient spa treatments are highly recommended. These include bubbling seawater baths, seawater inhalations, therapeutic movement baths, physiotherapy, mud wraps, and massages, all designed to support your health and well-being.

FISHING

Possession of an annual fishing license (Jahresfischereischein, JFS) entitles you to fish in the North Sea. For inland waters, an additional permit is required. Anglers without a JFS can obtain an exemption permit (Tourist Fishing License) valid for 28 days, which can be renewed once.

Anglers holding a JFS from outside Schleswig-Holstein need supplementary stamps (Ergänzungsmarken). Fishing licenses and supplementary stamps are available at the Citizens' Service Office of the Sylt municipal administration.

The permit for inland waters can be obtained online at www.hejfish.com.

Guest anglers can choose between daily, weekly, two-week, or monthly permits. Please note that closed seasons and minimum size limits must be observed.

AQUARIUM

Just a few meters from the shoreline, right by the beach, Sylt offers plenty of fish – both local and exotic.

The Aquarium in the south of Westerland features 25 tanks dedicated to the North Sea and its marine life. Additionally, seven tanks showcase the tropical seas, complete with colorful coral reefs.

A highlight of the visit is walking through the glass tunnels, which take visitors through the two largest tanks. The aquarium is particularly proud of its two sandbar sharks (a male and a female) as well as several Indian stingrays. Dogs are welcome!

BOULE

Whether in Kampen or Wenningstedt, everyone is welcome to play at the Boulodrome (17 m x 32 m) in the picturesque Avenarius Park. The court is well-maintained and offers a charming setting for a relaxing game. Players can bring their own boules or rent them for a small fee at Kaamp-Hüs.

The local Boule community "Sylter Bouletten" regularly hosts games, where both locals and visitors can join in. During their playtimes, participants do not need to bring their own boules. It's a great way to enjoy the game while socializing with fellow players.

EXPERIENCE CENTER – NATURGEWALTEN

The nature exhibition at Lister Hafen is dedicated to the island of Sylt. It explores the island's history, formation, and coastal protection.

Visitors are introduced to Sylt's diverse animals and plants and can marvel at the forces of the North Sea – from the power of the wind that continuously pushes the wandering dunes eastward each year, to the fascinating underwater world of the seals, observed undisturbed via a live webcam.

Another highlight is the stunning view of our planet from an astronaut's perspective. The centerpiece of the exhibition is the Syltdome, a 360-degree cinema featuring changing show programs and a unique Sylt film. More information is available at www.syltdome.de

CYCLING

With 200 kilometers of cycling routes, Sylt offers an easy and scenic way to explore the island by bike. The well-maintained paths connect all major towns, allowing cyclists to enjoy the breathtaking landscapes at their own pace.

For those who get tired on the way back, buses on the island are equipped with bike racks, making it easy to transport bicycles. Alternatively, renting an e-bike provides an extra boost for a more relaxed ride.

Bicycle rental locations can be found in the service section, and detailed route suggestions are available at www.sylt.de/radfahren

FITNESS

Sylt's fitness centers welcome holiday guests with day passes and special short-term memberships, allowing visitors to stay active during their stay. Whether it's strength training, cardio workouts, or group fitness classes, there are plenty of options to keep fit while enjoying the island.
